The Burns Supper

The Burns Supper has been a Scottish tradition since 1796 that we woefully adopted as our own in 2000. It's a night when Scots and scottophiles worldwide celebrate the birthday of Scotland's national bard, Robert Burns (Rabbie Burns, to you and me), born January 25, 1759, and enjoy the company of good friends, traditional fare, and delicious scotch.

The Burns Supper is a bacchanalia and poetry reading come together – an evening replete with questionable Scottish cooking (somehow getting better with each passing year); bawdy Scottish poetry and toasts galore (read by all); clumsy Scottish accents (also getting better with each passing year); and a few too many drams of Scotch.

Please join us for our sixth annual Burns Supper. The evening is BYOB – or, more properly Scottish, BYOS. And, as always, if you enjoy cooking and want to take a stab at Scottish country fare, please let us know – you can even use our kitchen.
